A Simple Tariff Lesson.

The following is a very simple tariff lesson which we copy from an exchange, where we find it without credit:

What is a tariff? A tariff is a tax levied on foreign goods when imported to the country. Who pays this tax?

The importer pays it. Does he lose anything in conscquence? He does not, Because he adds the amount of the tax to the cost, and then, with reasonable profit on both, he sells to some one else

Does any one lose anything by the transaction.

The consumer loses all that is added on account of the tariff.

Who is benefited? The Government is benefited to the amount of this tariff, less the cost of col-

Is anybody else benefited? Manufacturers or producers of the same goods in this country are benefited by it. They are enabled to sell their goods correspondingly higher and still compete with the importer in price. Who is loser in that case?

The consumer, the same as in the other case.

What is the distinction between revenue tariff and a protective tariff.

The same tariff may be both revenue and protective, revenue with reference to the imported articles, and protective with the reference to home production of the same kind. Tariff on such goods as we cannot produce is always "for revenue only.'

Does a protective tariff enable a manufacturer to pay higher wages for

It enables, but does not compel him to

What does he do in that case? He hires his labor as cheap as he can

Why so? Because it is in accordance with human nature and business principles.

How does the politician get into office on a protec?ive platform?

He tells the manufacturer that since the protective tariff is for his special benefit, he must furnish $1,000,000 campaign fund.

And what does the manufacturer do? Believes him and reluctantly furnishes the money.

What does the politician then do? He goes to the people and tells them t'at protection is for their special benefit, and that the country is going to be rained with British free trade if they don't all vote for him.

By what special argument does he secure the farmers' vote?

He assures them that protection bring down the price of everything, and then promises him a protective tariff on all his farm products, in order to increase Epoch.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. a remarkable event is treasured in the memory, and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health, to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of the Kidneys, Liver and Stomach, of long or short standing, you will surely find relief by use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c. and $1 per bottle at G. W. Short's, Cloverport, Ky., and J. A. Witt's, Hardinsburg, Ky.

A MAJORITY OF THEM LAWYERS.

The lawyers will have the best of it in the Constitutional Convention. ning through the list of gentlemen who are sure to be elected—the assurance arising from absence of opposition or from having the nomination of the dominant party-it is quickly apparent that a majority of them are lawyers. As eased, and my parishioners thought I there are a good many lawyers among bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery and about their election, but with a chance to win, it may be set down as certain that a majority of the delegates to the convention will be lawyers. Fortysix lawyers are aleady as good as elected. Ten farmers are in the same lucky boat, and three doctors are sure of their seats The others are pretty well distributed as to occupation, and doubtless there are a number of lawyers farmers and doctors among those whose occupations are not reported. Some of the lawyers are also bankers, railroad men and farmers are three reformed physicians. One editor, one druggist, one pension agent and school teacher, one banker and a number of "business men," including merchants and trades of all sorts, will be among the delegates.—Courior Journal.

Tetter Cured by S. S. S.

I used Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) about three years ago for an aggravated case of Tetter, and was cured sound and well with three bottles. I have had no return of the annoying disease since. 1 tried various other remedies before using S. S. S. but they failed to cure me, or benefit me in any way. OLIN C. FOGLE,

I have sold Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) for a number of years, and can cheerfully recommend it. As a tonic and blood purifier it is without an equal.

Don't Raise Your Hat. A fashion paper says it is no longer good form for a gentleman to raise his hat when he meets a lady on the street. A courteous wave of the hand, not unlike a military salute, has been substituted for the old custom in London, Paris, Vienna and points in America where styles are started. It is not a fad but conviction that uncovering the head in the air caused a number of cases of influenza. To see a man go along the street and with a spasmodic grab yank his hat off and bring it down over his face so he can see the inside of a crown is amusing. Fools do the same thing and saphead dudes always. In the future keep on your hat if you wish to be in style. Make a semi-military salute, just touching the rim of the hat.

Personal Comfort a Specialty with Seashere Excursion.

No one who feels inclined to go on the Old Point trip should hesitate for fear of being crowed or neglecteh, for this cannot possibly occur with the extra care taken of the excursionists. What a Man Eats.

A curious calculation of the amount of food consumed in a lifetime of 70 years has recently been made by M. Soyer, a French savant, now chief of the Reform Club of London. Among other things M. Soyer says that the average epicure of three score and ten will have consumed 30 oxen, 200 sheep, 100 calves, 200 lambs, 50 pigs, 2,200 fowls, 1,000 fish, of different kinds, 30,000 oysters, 5,475 pounds of vegetables, 243 pounds of butter, 24,000 eggs, and four tons of bread, besides several hogsheads of wine, tea, coffee, &c. This enormous amount of food will weigh but little short of 40 tons. -St. Louis Republic.

Chloroforming Wild Turkeys. Jim White owns a patch of ground near this place. The surrounding forest abounds in wild turkeys, and in the spring old Jim spends most of his time hunting their nests and occasionally capturing the birds alive. This he accomplishes in a novel manner, yet the process is much more matter of fact than sportsmanlike.

He first discovers the turkey's roosting place, and then, under cover of darkness, he fires a brush heap near the tree, which he has previously prepared, and while the turkey's attention is attracted to the flames Jim creeps up to the tree with his appliance used for making the capture. This consists of several sections of strong bamboo rods, jointed like a fishing rod, and may be extended twenty or thirty feet in length. At the top end is secured a saucer shaped vessel, over which a small bottle is fastened, neck downward. To the cork is attached a cord, which runs the entire length of the rod. The bottle is then filled with chloroform, and under cover of dark shadows Jim noiselessly elevates the drug to within a short distance of the turkey's nose. He then pulls the string, causing the cork to withdraw and allowing the drug to fall into the vessel. The fluid is at once inhaled, and the bird presently drops to the ground stupefied.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
